Leprosy is a disease as old as human history. Its disfiguring effects struck fear in people’s hearts. Patients were ostracized for lack of an effective cure. Now a cure exists, and it’s available free of charge. Diagnosed early and treated promptly, leprosy leaves no trace. But mistaken beliefs about the disease persist. They perpetuate social and economic discrimination. This discrimination causes emotional and psychological pain. To conquer this age-old stigma, drugs alone are not enough. All of us must be part of the social healing process. People affected by leprosy and their families have a right to a normal life. Denying basic human rights to someone because he or she once had a disease is wrong. Let us all join hands to eliminate fear, discrimination, and social stigma wherever they exist. Let the healing begin today.
